

The new multipolar global order and the challenge of the SDGs

ÖFSE 50th anniversary

12./13.10.2017, C3 – Centre for International Development Sensengasse 3, 1090 Vienna

Speakers:

Daniel Barben holds a chair of Science, Technology and Society Studies at Alpen-Adria-Universität Klagenfurt. His main fields of research are the interdependencies between processes of technical and social changes facing global problems in health, nutrition, energy, mobility, demography and climate matters.

Ulrich Brand is Professor of International Politics at the University of Vienna since 2007. Before he worked as an Assistant Professor at Kassel University and taught and did research at several universities in Europe, North and Latin America. Among other activities, he was member of the Expert Commission „Growth, well-being and quality of life“ of the German Parliament.

Michele Clara is Industrial Development Officer at UNIDO. He was involved in the design and implementation of value chain and cluster development initiatives in India, Pakistan, Iran and Vietnam and is one of the authors of the UNIDO methodology on cluster development. Since May 2010, he coordinates the work of the Research and Policy Advice Group at UNIDO.

Jörg Flecker has been Professor of Sociology at the University of Vienna since 2013. Previously he was research director of FORBA (Working Life Research Centre) from 1991 – 2013. His research interests are international comparison of changes to employment systems, working in transnational value chains, dynamic networking of organisations and the quality of work, public service transformation in European welfare states.

Jayati Ghosh is Professor of Economics at the Centre for Economic Studies and Planning, School of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi. She is Executive Secretary of International Development Economics Associates (IDEAS). She has authored and/or edited a dozen books and more than 160 scholarly articles and also been active in consulting for governments and international organisations.

Stefan Giljum is Head of the research group “Sustainable Resource Use” at the Institute for Ecological Economics of the Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU). He works in the areas of global resource flow accounting, economic-environment modelling, and the nexus between international trade, environment and development. He has coordinated a large number of national and international research and policy-consulting projects, including for the European Commission, the OECD and UN Environment.

Veronika Haschka is head of the department for OECD coordination and general coordination of Science, Research, Technology and Education in the Federal Chancellery of Austria. She is an economist and her department is responsible for coordinating and in some cases elaborating Austrian positions, comments and inputs to OECD documents and discussions. She is also vice chair of the Austrian Statistics Council.

Erwin Künzi is heading the Themes and Quality Unit of the Austrian Development Agency ADA. Previously he held the post of Deputy Head of Office and Advisor on Water and Sanitation at ADA's Country Office in Uganda. He has been guest lecturing on development cooperation and technology transfer at Universities in Vienna and Innsbruck and was engaged in research on peasant livelihood strategies and perceptions in Northern Kenya.

Peter Launsky-Tieffenthal is Director-General of the Department for Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs of the Austrian Federal Ministry for Europe, Integration and Foreign Affairs (BMeiA). Previously he was the Under-Secretary-General for Public Information at United Nations and Head of the Department for Press and Information at BMeiA.

Johanna Mang is Head of Programmes at Light for the World Austria. She studied Urban and Regional Planning and Resource Policy. She was previously Head of Unit NGO Cooperation and Humanitarian Aid of the Austrian Development Agency and worked for Austrian and international NGOs specialized in development cooperation and environmental protection; among those the World Wide Fund for Nature and CARE Österreich.

Jens Martens is an economist and political scientist. He has been the Director of Global Policy Forum Europe since its foundation in 2004. Since 2011 he has coordinated the international Reflection Group on the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. He has published more than 100 articles and several books and studies on sustainable development, UN reform, global governance, privatization and corporate accountability.

Simon McGrath Professor of International Education and Development at the University of Nottingham. He is the UNESCO Chair in the Political Economy of Education in the Centre for International Education Research. He has engaged in policy advice and evaluation research for a range of national and international organisations such as DFID, UNESCO and the Commonwealth Secretariat.

Michael Obrovsky is Senior Researcher and Deputy Director at ÖFSE. His work focuses on issues of Austrian and international development policy, development cooperation and development financing. He has been lecturing at the University of Vienna and at the Danube University Krems since 2011 and is a member of various committees of national and international development institutions.

Wolfram Schaffar is Professor for Development Studies and Political Science at the Institute for Development Studies at the University of Vienna. Prior to this position, he has been working at the University of Bonn, the Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok and the Yangon University, Myanmar. In his work he focuses on alternative development paradigms, democratisation processes and - recently - the rise of authoritarianism.

Klaus Töpfer is Vice President of the German World Hunger Organization and Senator of the Helmholtz Association for Earth and Environment. Previously, he served as the Executive Director for the Institute for Advanced Sustainability Studies in Potsdam (2006-2015) and for the UNEP in Nairobi (1998-2006). In the German political field, he was amongst others the Federal Minister for the Environment (1987-1994).

Annelies Vilim is the director of the NGO umbrella organisation Global Responsibility – Austrian Platform for Development and Humanitarian Aid. In that capacity she represents the political interests of (currently) 34 member organisations. Ms. Vilim holds a degree in social science (Sociology and Ethnology, University of Vienna) and has more than 25 years of professional experience as manager, consultant and leadership trainer. She has worked in/for the political, private, public and NPO sector and in different cultures.