

Europe in Polycrisis: Struggles for Survival, Climate and Energy Justice

Presentation of the EuroMemorandum 2023

Context and Motivation

The neoliberal global and European order has entered a polycrisis, understood as multiple shocks feeding each other with growing complexity. Taking its cue from the UNEP Emissions Gap Report that the time for incremental change has passed, and that only a root-and-branch economic transformation can save humanity from disaster, the 2023 EuroMemorandum analyses the polycrisis Europe faces, critiques EU policy, and offers radical policy-alternatives.

The EuroMemorandum is the annual report on the political and economic state of the union, published by the European Economists for an Alternative Economic Policy in Europe (the EuroMemo Group), a network of European economists, social science as well as legal scholars committed to promoting full employment with good work, social justice with an eradication of poverty and social exclusion, ecological sustainability, and international solidarity.
